Interview:

After attending the MEDIA workshop on EYFT 2019 and talking to our peers from 8 different countries about how they get the information, we wanted to hear what young people in Croatia think about it. So we asked them to answer a few questions. The questions were:

1. How do you get information?
2. Do you get information through social networks?

3. Which social network do you use the most?
4. Which social network do you trust the most?
5. Apart from social networks, do you use other media? (newspaper, TV, radio, internet)
6. Do you believe more in internet or people?
7. Do you believe in news written in newspapers?
8. Do you disseminate information without having verified their truthfulness?

Conclusion: Based on conversations with our peers, we came to the conclusion that the youngsters today find most of the information on the Internet. Most of them use Instagram, which is also the most trusted social network. They mostly watch television and rarely read the newspapers. Usually they don't believe in everything they hear on the television or see on the social networks.

3. Overcome your borders

Target group: Students of Ivan Trnski highschool, aged 16-17, students of economy

Goal: to include the activities from the workshops in Switzerland in the classroom

Students: Helena Ćatić & Ornela Ćatić

After participating in various workshops in Trogen, we decided to include the activities we had in Switzerland in our classroom. We played various games that we played at our workshops in Pestalozzi and talked to our friends about serious and important topics. We also taught them what the teambuilding means and how to make the atmosphere in our class better. We talked about problems that we have in class and wrote letters to each other. We are still striving to include as many activities as we have been doing in Trogen to our class.
